

SMARTY'S MOTO WRAP FOR FEBRAURY 19, 2013

MATE, THIS IS 'THE MOTO BIBLE'!

SMARTY'S THOUGHTS FOR FEB 19

I read with much interest the press release that informed us that the Darwin round of the Australian Superbike Championship (ASBK) will be combined with the opening round of the Australian Supercross Championship (ASX) in September.

Having raced in the NT several times I can attest to the fact the Northern Territory people love their motorsport but if at any stage it is suggested that the ASX is 'supporting' the ASBK I will spew chips!! In its current state road racing in Australia is at best struggling with two series running in different guises while the ASX series has quickly built a solid following after the successful 2012 series and let's face it, the NT is better known as a dirt biking community than anything else.

Davi Milsaps has extended his AMA Supercross points lead after round seven at Arlington, Texas and he now has almost a full race points lead over Ryan Dungey with Ryan Villopoto a few points further back. There were some interesting developments at Arlington including an outstanding result for FNQ rider Jackson Richardson so check out the full report below.

Josh Cachia has joined Ben Townley and Ford Dale at the Carlton Dry Honda team and I reckon that is a ripper decision by all involved. Cachia has matured a lot over the last few years into a formidable racer and he will be a force in the MX2 championship chase. Josh's time in the US will benefit him greatly and more than likely earn him an Aussie MX and or SX crown in 2013.

With Cachia going from KTM to Honda I found it interesting that Andrew Short will be exactly the opposite with the likeable Yank being signed by the BTO Sport KTM team for the remainder of the AMA SX season and for the full outdoor series. Short has been riding as a privateer on his own Honda after the Larry Brooks/Jeremy McGrath team folded after round 2 of the AMA Supercross Championship.

Finally, after a few weeks on great weather the Coolum club day was canceled due to a deluge of rain late in the week so here we are, late February and no racing on the 2013 KTM450SX-F or the 1997 Honda CR125R. It is getting a little frustrating BUT no matter what happens my mates and I are going riding next

SO, WHAT'S IN THIS ISSUE?

The 2013 Arenacross Championship contenders have hit re-set for the last five rounds while round 3 of the Italian Motocross and the annual Valencia Motocross gave the GP regulars a workout while the 2013 Hell's Gate Hard Enduro has been run and won.

The regular stuff has been updated as well

- Where all of our international riders are at for next year.
- Team line-ups for 2013
- The off-road calendar for 2013.
- The results from every major off-road championship or series completed in 2012 and 2013
- Australian Off-Road History Lesson (again, HUGE Up-Dates this week!!)

weekend....SOMEWHERE!!!! That is about it from me this week, Smarty.

- - ASBK to Support ASX in NT

NT Motorsport fans will be in heaven when Darwin's Hidden Valley Raceway hosts the QBE Australian Superbike Championships (ASBK) and round one of the Australian Supercross Championships from September 12-15.

The event will mark the first ever venture to the Northern Territory for the Australian Supercross Championship and alongside the ASBK racing there will also be demonstrations from Australia's leading freestyle motocross riders and a host of entertainment and fun for the whole family.

Yarrive Konsky, Director of IEG, said his team was excited at the opportunity to bring the two premier racing disciplines together in one major event. "The Northern Territory loves its motorsport and has been so receptive to the Australian Superbike Championship," said Konsky. "We are determined to take two-wheeled events to another level in the Top End and are excited to announce that both Championships will be held on the same weekend, a first for our industry."

"The staging of Supercross alongside the MotoGP last year was an international success, and we'll build upon this formula for our visit in September so the event will mark the opening round of the Supercross season, and the exciting and all-important closing stages of the Superbikes." Konsky added.

David White, CEO of Motorcycling Australia, said the combination of two dynamic disciplines in one event would make for a great spectacle. "The ASBK and the Australian Supercross Championship are two of our premier motorcycle sport competitions, and we are thrilled that IEG will deliver both of these in Darwin this year," said White. "Having road race and Supercross events run alongside one another is a dynamic combination for spectators and riders, we saw this in action at the MotoGP in Phillip Island last year and we can't wait to see it again in Darwin this September."

"The double program in Darwin will be a great chance for our Northern Territory spectators and enthusiasts to get down to the track and see two very different disciplines of motorcycle sport at the one venue." White continued. "Some fans may come for the road racing action, and some may come for the Supercross, but all of them will see some of our top Australian riders out on track doing what they do best," he concluded

Defending Australian Supercross Champion, Jay Marmont was excited at the prospect of racing in the Northern Territory and joining with the ASBK in one marquee event. "The Australian Supercross Championship had a great debut season and it is awesome to see that IEG are stepping it up with the 2013 plans," said

Marmont. "There has never been a national round of Supercross in Darwin so it is exciting to know we are bringing the sport live to a whole new audience.

"It is such a great concept having both the ASBK and Supercross on the one weekend - this is a weekend not to be missed for any motorcycle racing fan, I have never been to Darwin but I have heard it is a really great place and is home to everything I am into so I am really looking forward to heading up there later this year."

Marmont added.

-- Cachia To CDH

21 year-old Josh Cachia will ride the Carlton Dry Honda CRF250R in the 2013 MX Nationals and ASX with the desire to 'smoke everyone'.

"You know, we're pretty much like family and I'm just super excited to get on the bike actually," said Cachia. "I know the Honda is such a good bike, I mean I saw Eli Tomac's bike handle things I'd never seen before so on one side I'm really excited to develop the bike with Chris Woods and I'm looking forward to the change, it's a breath of fresh air, I was getting a bit stale on the KTM, so a change never hurts. I just want to bring on this year with some really good results, actually, I really just want to smoke everyone."

"It's not so much been great for results, but more so for life experience," Cachia said of his recent trip to the States where he contested the opening few rounds of the AMA 250SX West series. "This year has been amazing. I went over to America, lived there for six months and I raced the world's best! I became friends with some of the world's best and met some really cool people in the industry.

Cachia's official debut with the Carlton Dry Honda team will be at Raymond Terrace's season-opener of the 2013 MX Nationals on Sunday the 14th of April.

- - Italian Motocross Championships – Pietramurata - Round 3

Red Bull KTM rider Jeffrey Herlings put on a masterclass as he not only won his MX2 moto, but also beat the leading MX1 riders to win the superfinal in the last round of the Italian Championships. Herlings beat home Steven Frossard by around a second and was another 10 seconds ahead of third placed Ken De Dycker.

Earlier in the day World MX1 Champion Antonio Cairoli won the MX1 moto from Frossard and De Dycker, his winning margin four seconds. Cairoli failed to finish the Superfinal, but with the victory by Herlings the excitement for the opening Grand Prix of the season in Doha, Qatar is mounting.

The senior titles at the Italian International MX Championship were safe in Orange hands when the three-round series concluded on Sunday at the northern Italian circuit of Arco di Trento with Tony Cairoli picking up both the MX1 and the Elite silverware.

MX 1 teammate Ken De Dycker finished second in the MX1 championship and third in the Elite class while Jeffrey Herlings had a great start to his season, winning both the MX2 and the Elite race in his only appearance in the series.

Cairoli started the day with style with a great win in the 17-lap MX1 race, winning from Frenchman Steven Frossard by almost four seconds. Teammate De Dycker finished fourth giving both riders enough accrued points in the series to be 1-2 in the championship.

Then Herlings celebrated his return to the international circuit with a dominant victory in the MX2 class, crossing the line 28 seconds (!) ahead of eventual title winner Christophe Charlier of France and his KTM factory teammate Jordi Tixier in third. Herlings and Tixier only raced in Rd. 3. They were due to compete at the Hawkstone International in the UK, but the race was canceled because of bad weather. Herlings then continued his charge in the Elite race facing off against teammate Cairoli. The Italian had a comfortable lead on his KTM 350 SX-F and seemed set to deliver a perfect double. He had a comfortable lead through to the thirteenth of seventeen laps but then got tangled with a back marker and had to retire with a broken gearshift. Herlings, showing little respect for the rest of the MX1 riders in the field, then went on to win on his KTM 250 SX-F in front of Frossard. De Dycker took third and Tixier finished in ninth place.

Cairoli came away more than satisfied and said the series had been very good for him except for two small incidents. In Rd. 2 in Malagrotta he got a stone wedged in his rear brake and today there was the incident with the back marker. “I tried to pass him but just as I was going past he move out and I hit his back wheel with the gear shift. I tried to keep going but in the end I had to stop. I knew it was okay for the championship. It is also a long time since I rode on this type of gravel surface but lap-by-lap I got used to it. It was good to race here because this is a venue where we will have a GP this season.”

Ken De Dycker had been ill this week and was not at the top of his game but he said he feels very confident ahead of the GP season. "It was nice to have three rounds on completely different surfaces and I think we are ready for the first GP. This year I have had the best training and I feel stronger and fitter than ever before, especially with the new bike." De Dycker rides the KTM 450 SX-F

Jeffrey Herlings: "I haven't been so happy with my pre-season preparations but today was great and I know I'm always there when the gate drops. I'm glad to have won the MX2 race by almost half a minute and also to win the Elite race even though it was because Tony had some bad luck. Now it's two weeks of hard training before the first GP."

KTM Team managers Claudio de Carli and Stefan Everts were also satisfied with their teams ahead of the season.

Claudio De Carli said it had been very good to have three races close together and on three different surfaces. "This is very useful for the riders because we will have these conditions in the GPs this season. The first race in Sardinia was on sand. Then there was the hard pack of Malagrotta and now the gravel in Arco di Trento, which was very different and had not much grip. I am very happy with the races and with the pre season preparation. Today was the reward for all the hard work the riders have done."

Stefan Everts said he was happy with his two MX2 riders' performance at Arco. "Jeffrey had two solid races and two good wins today. Jordi struggled with his confidence on the gravel surface, which was very slippery but I have confidence in him for the season and at the end of the day I am happy with the both."

The Red Bull KTM Factory team will now prepare for the opening races of the 2013 World Championship season to be held on March 1, for the first time in Qatar and under lights.

- - Valence International Motocross - Valence, France

Kawasaki's Gautier Paulin has dominated the annual Valence International Motocross with two wins in the MX1 motos rides while KTM's Jake Nicholls made short work of the MX2 field as well – both riders will carry a lot of confidence as they head to the opening round of the MX World Champs in a few weeks time.

Paulin pulled out of the Superfinal handing Clement Desalle the overall win on the day so Kawasaki's press release says that Paulin dominated the MX1 class while Suzuki's press release says that Desalle has won the day....whatever!!

MX1 Overall: 1. Gautier Paulin. 2. Cedric Soubeyras. 3. Clement Desalle. 4. Xavier Boog. 5. Kevin Strijbos. 6. Tanel Leok. 7. Sebastien Pourcel. 8. Mathis Karro. 9. Fabien Izoird. 10. Jason Dougan.

Superfinal: 1. Xavier Boog (KTM). 2. Clement Desalle (Rockstar Energy Suzuki) +0.02.923. 3. Tanel Leok (Honda) +0.04.068. 4. Valentin Teillet (Kawasaki) +0.34.302. 5. Kevin Strijbos (Rockstar Energy Suzuki) +0.39.726

Overall Results: 1. Clement Desalle (Rockstar Energy Suzuki) 64pts. 2. Xavier Boog (KTM) 61pts. 3. Tanel Leok (Honda) 50 pts. 4. Gauthier Paulin (Kawasaki) 50pts. 5. Kevin Strijbos (Rockstar Energy Suzuki) 48 pts.

-- Hell's Gate Hard Enduro

Graham Jarvis has become the most successful rider ever at the infamous Hell's Gate Hard Enduro event, delivering a dominant performance to secure victory at the 10th running of the race.

Jarvis notched up a third consecutive win finishing comfortably ahead of Jonny Walker with Cody Webb third.

For the first time in the 10-year history of the event the Italian mountains were covered in deep snow, something that provided riders with additional challenges. With the course eased a little due to the adverse conditions the four lap main race ended with Husaberg the only manufacturer to see two of its riders make it to the top of Hell's Peak – the arduous final climb of the race.

Placing second in the morning's qualifying event Jarvis finished just 15 seconds behind winner Jonny Walker, ensuring a front row position for the all-important main event.

Doing his best to preserve his energy, Jarvis managed to post the fastest time on the third and final special test. With thick snow covering much of the course the morning race proved to be anything but easy.

Intent on remaining behind Walker during the opening lap of the main event Jarvis found himself leading the race a little sooner than he'd hoped. Forced to carve a line through the snow in numerous sections of the course, Jarvis was nevertheless able to power his way up the many rocky river beds and in doing so instantly started to pull away from his rivals.

"I was happy to follow Jonny from the start of the main race," explained Graham shortly after his podium celebrations. "I was riding behind him ok and in no hurry to pass him, but he made a mistake and I went to the front of the race.

It was hard because I was putting in the line in the snow. The rivers were surprisingly grippy, which is where I think I managed to make my time.

In the snow you just had to try and keep things in a straight line, you couldn't push hard at all."

Initially a five-lap race the organiser's decision to reduce it to four laps was met by relief from the competitors. Continuing to push hard Jarvis held a commanding lead at the end of the second lap, stopping briefly to refuel before once again attacking the course. Crashing just once, Jarvis, who earlier this year topped The Tough One, maintained his relentless pace to start the final lap all but assured of the win.

With darkness beginning to fall as Graham arrived at the base of the final climb it took two attempts for the Husaberg TE 300 mounted rider to get close to the half way point of the climb.

Pushed, pulled, and dragged upwards by the enthusiastic group of spectators gathered close to the finish, Jarvis finally reached the end of the race 12 minutes ahead of second placed Walker and clearly overjoyed to have claimed yet another Hell's Gate win.

"It's an incredible feeling to have won at Hell's Gate for the third time. I really wasn't expecting it and because of the conditions I didn't know how things would work out, or how the other riders would do." Jarvis explained.

"Once I got into the lead everything went really well. The morning race was quite hard. The snow meant that some of the easier sections of the track from previous years were really tough, it also meant that I used a bit more energy than I hoped to.

"Jonny Walker was fast, like I expected him to be, but finishing second and not too far behind was good. "

"I had two goes at the final hill and didn't even get anywhere near half way. I was screaming to the spectators to start pulling me because I've lost the race on the last hill before," he continued.

"It seemed to take forever to get to the top but once I got a rope on my bike I knew I was safe. It's a great achievement to have three wins, but I hope I can add to that. I've really enjoyed the race this year and will be back next year." Jarvis concluded.

Jarvis won by 12 minutes and 17 seconds ahead of British rider Walker who needed medical attention on the podium. Beta Factory rider Webb was a further five minutes back in third position.

- - Australasian Off-Road History

Lesson - -

I aim to put every Australasian Champion and Australian International riders results into this section so if anyone can help with some of the information that is missing from below please e-mail me on smartymx97@yahoo.com - it would be great to put up every Australasian and State Champion from Speedway, Trials, Enduro, Motocross, Supercross as well as the high profile annual events like Manjimup, King of the Cross, Finke, Thumper Nats, Australian Safari, Motocross of Nations, AORC, A4DE, New Zealand Woodville GP AND the results from every Australasian that ever managed to succeed on the international scene.

- - Every Australasian International Dirt Bike Rider - -

For relatively small countries, Australia and New Zealand always seem to produce great riders and champions - here is a list of riders who have made an impact on the international racing stage in all aspects of off-road motorcycling.

I will compile all of these rider's achievements over the next few months but if anyone has any info that will help please e-mail me on smartymx97@yahoo.com - likewise, if I have missed anyone let me know.
